THEMES FOR 1973 AND BEYOND

Themes planned for future issues are published here in response to the concern of potential authors, who are invited to submit manuscripts related to these themes if they wish to do so. We shall continue to publish general material, however. Our hope is that an announcement such as this will reduce the need to solicit theme articles without discouraging those whose interests do not match our topics.

"Changing Boundaries of Pastoral Care"

Focusing on the question: Is there a field for pastoral theology and, if so, what are its boundaries? How does clinical pastoral education in particular relate to theology and the church?

"New Frontiers of Pastoral Care"

An international issue presenting contributions of authors from countries where our field is new and providing some cross-cultural perspectives on clinical pastoral education in particular.

"Pivotal Issues in Pastoral Care and Counseling"

Attending to a number of issues on which future developments may "pivot": learning approaches such as B. F. Skinner's, the economics of pastoral care and counseling, women's liberation in the ministry, the career counseling movement in relation to changing forms of ministry, etc.

"Research in Pastoral Theology"

Reporting data from the Taggart study not included in this issue and focusing on the need, the styles, and the excitement in research.

"Pastoral Work with Families"

Relating the contribution of family therapy to pastoral work and making room for additional input from other areas of social psychology.
